We are thinking of you during your journey through grief. We reach out to our TRU family members by phone and with periodic mailings during the 13 months following the death of a loved one. These quarterly grief support newsletters are available to you, your friends, and your community at www.TruCare.org under Our Support/Grief Services. Please call us anytime for support at 303.604.5300.

Special Handling, Please

I was handed a package the other day. It was wrapped securely to be mailed away. Attached to the outside as plain as could be was a simple note for all to see:

Contained within, find one bereaved heart fragile, broken, falling apart.

People say, "Come over, Be of good cheer, Celebrate the holidays, Prepare a New Year."

But my grief overwhelms me like waves in the sea. Can they cope with my crying; an unsettled me?

I don't have any holiday cheer. Decorations, traditions, big family meal, I can't do it this year. Do you know how I feel?

So just ship me away; address unknown. When my grief is over, I might fly home.

Signed,

Bereaved Heart

Stay in your season of winterness as long as need be, for everything you feel is appropriate.

Dear Bereaved Heart:

The death of your loved one has forced you to start a new type of living that’s hard on the heart. Don’t be concerned now with invitations, big meals. See how the little stuff handles and feels. Let the love of your family, neighbors and friends uphold and sustain you when you’re at loose ends. When holiday invitations knock at your door, don’t say “yes” to five when you only want four. Please listen, Bereaved Heart, stay close and please dare to open your package and let others care.

Signed,

Your Friend

What TRUly Matters

This holiday season, TRU Community Care invites you to remember someone who has been special in your life by attending our Lights of Life Holiday Remembrance Service.

Our indoor service will feature a reading of names, music, and a luminaria ritual, along with light refreshments. You’ll have a chance to connect with others who are in similar situations and feel more supported going into the holidays.

Guests are invited to bring a photo or memento to place on our memory table. If you choose, you may also bring a story, poem, or reading to share during a designated time in the service. You may also come and just sit quietly.

A Remembrance Ceremony… The act of joining together in our grief and ritualizing our mourning can be very healing.
- Alan D. Wolfelt, Ph.D
Chances are it will be a painful time. There will be difficult moments, but the holidays don’t have to be “horrendous”. Sometimes the anticipation is worse than the actual experience.

Express yourself in a way that works for you. Cry. Talk. Keep a journal. Write a letter to the deceased, a poem or story, or record your dreams. Sing. Play an instrument. Pray. Make something out of wood, mold clay, quilt, or paint.

Identify which aspects of the holidays are meaningful to you, and which traditions you can modify or forgo. Try not to make drastic changes, but some changes can be healthy and important.

Seek out those who will let you talk or cry, or do whatever you need to do. Contact local bereavement support programs, or join a grief group.

Give yourself time to rest, and be forgiving of yourself. Don’t overcommit. Ease holiday demands and set easy-to-attain goals.

Find moments to place your attention outside yourself. Volunteer, help a neighbor, or assist a stranger.

Stay open to the demands of this experience. There is hope for your healing and growth.

Holidays and the Art of Compromise

During the holidays, everyone in the family has different desires about how they want to remember their special person who has died. Some family traditions may be important to keep, and others may not. It takes everyone’s involvement in making a plan and finding a balance, in order to accommodate everyone’s individual needs.

Kids and teens may want to keep some traditions, allowing them to feel connected to their special person. Or, sometimes, they may feel open to doing something new. No matter what is decided, the key is to ask important questions and have the necessary conversations about planning for the holidays before the holidays arrive, when grief often surfaces again like a wave.
